
Arbon—Tiller

In the Balaklava Methodist Church, John, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Arbon, of Kybunga, and Jean, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Tiller, of Rupara, Balaklava, were married by the Rev. J. Gilding. Mr. L. L. March played the organ. The bride, who entered the church with her father, wore white georgette and lace, with an orthodox silk tulle veil caught with orange blossom, falling gracefully to form a train. Her shoes were of white velvet touched with silver. She carried a posy of white flowers and fern, with trails, and on her arm hung a white satin horseshoe, sent by Adelaide friends. The bridesmaids, Misses Coral Tiller and Eileen Arbon, wore replicas of the bride's dress in pale pink georgette and lace. The bridegroom's gifts of brilliant pendants were fastened around their necks. Delma Clark, the little flower girl, who preceded the bridal party up the aisle, was dressed in sea blue georgette. She also wore a crystal necklet, the bridegroom's gift. Mr. Keith Tiller was best man, and Mr. Rex Arbon groomsman. Miss Edna March sang during the signing of the register, and Messrs. J. D. Hill and E. C. Diekman were ushers. As the bride left the church, three small cousins—Amil McArdle and Valma and Irene Clark—hung on her arm white satin horseshoes trimmed with orange blossom. A reception was held afterwards in the Watchman Hall, the guests being announced by Mr. John Clarke. Mrs. R. C. Tiller wore a navy dress and hat, and carried an autumn-toned posy. Mrs. E. Arbon wore black, relieved with beige georgette, and a black hat, and carried a red posy. The 130 odd guests were waited on by eight of the bride's cousins—Misses Madge, Sylvia, and Melva Tiller, Jean Evans, Lorna and Gwen Carter, Mavis Cavanagh, and Joan McArdle. The usual toasts were honored. Dancing followed the reception. Miss Iris Angel (Arran) provided the music. Items were given during the evening by Miss Ethel Spillane, Mrs. D. Evans, and Miss T. Redpath, Miss Joyce Bechman and Mr. Steve Underwood. A streamer dance was won by Mr. A. Baum and Miss J. Evans. Mr. and Mrs. Arbon later left for Adelaide, the bride travelling in rum brown pebble crepe.
