DAY—MAXWELL.

A correspondent supplies the following:—St. John's Church was the scene of a prettily arranged wedding on the 19th ult., when Miss Kate Maxwell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Maxwell, late of Roebourne, was married to Mr. G. T. Day, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Day, of Doonan-street, Fremantle. The Rev. Canon Barton-Parkes officiated, and the bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. W. Duffield, looked most graceful and charming in her dainty bridal dress of cream silk embroidered ninon, made with panel skirt, outlined with rich vandyked lace. The corsage was arranged with deep lace yoke and drape, caught up with a lovely spray of orange blossom. An exquisite veil was worn, surmounting a coronet of orange blossom, and she carried a beautiful shower bouquet. There were two attendant bridesmaids, the first, Miss Ida Day (sister of bridegroom), wearing a dainty dress of cream crystalline silk and lace, with large cream hat; and Miss Marjory Knapp, in pale blue silk and lace, with a most becoming bonnet in the Dutch style. They carried beautiful bouquets of crimson carnations and trailing fern, and wore the bridegroom's gifts, gold brooch and gold pins. A dear little train-bearer was Miss Peace Jeffrey, who looked so sweet in her frock of softest pink silk and quaint bonnet, and carried a carnation-decked crook. She also wore a lucky-pin, the gift of the bridegroom. The duties of best man were carried out by Mr. W. Maxwell (brother of bride), and Master Onslow Maxwell acted as groomsman. Mrs. Maxwell (mother of the bride) wore a stylish green cloth costume, finished with velvet folds, and chip hat, swathed in silk and wings. Mrs. Day (mother of the bridegroom) had on a handsome toilette in black and white, with hat en suite. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party were entertained by Mrs. Doyle at her residence, Ellen-street, when about seventy guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding tea, at which the usual toasts were honoured. Later on Mr. and Mrs. Day left for their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a most becoming heliotropa silk flowered voile, and smart hat, wreathed in delicate pink roses. The dresses mentioned were made by Mrs. Murray, of Douglas-street. Many handsome presents were received, that of the bride to the bridegroom being a handsome gold pin, and bridegroom to bride a gold and jewelled brooch; Mr. and Mrs. Day, sen., furniture and cutlery; employees of H. C. Moore, handsome marble clock.
